The Central Scotland Branch continues a trilogy of expert webinars on how to make a meaningful impact to carbon reduction in the built environment, from Structural Engineering, M&E and Contractor professionals.

The second in our webinar series is provided by Sustainability Engineering Professionals from BakerHicks. Here we will take a broad look at options available through building services and renewables technology to support achieving government net zero carbon targets in new developments, and how to find the most appropriate solution for each project.

The speakers will be Lewis Hunter, David Coulter and Julie Murphy of BakerHicks and there will be opportunity to pose questions to the panel at the end. This event will provide 1 hour of CPD.
