

COMING SOON

WEBINARS & NATIONAL EVENTS

We are continuing with our series of webinars and online events for members and their guests.

Some webinars will be exclusively for members, some will be open to members on a comp basis with non-members paying a nominal event fee. We will hold webinars with valuable (CPD) content so that personal development can continue.

We are also gradually and carefully reinstating exclusive site visits, social events and joint events with other professional groups, all providing excellent networking and hosting opportunities. Details of our full events programme (both webinars and in-person events) can be viewed here.

Webinar: 'Carbuncles, Controversies and Claptrap': What it's really like having a career in the heritage sector (Event Code CS090921)

9 September 2021
12:30pm - 1:30pm

The Central Scotland branch is delighted to welcome Elly McCrone of Historic Environment Scotland, who will be speaking candidly about her career and the paths that led to her current position as Director of Heritage.

Members: FREE
Non-Members: £10

Elly is responsible for the Heritage Directorate which leads Historic Environment Scotland's role in protecting, understanding and sharing information about Scotland's historic environment. This includes providing advice, policy and guidance about managing change to the historic environment as well as recording Scotland's historic sites and places and making that information available to the public. She is also responsible for assessing and deciding which sites become legally protected, such as listed buildings.

There will be an opportunity for Q&As after Elly's talk.

Webinar: For peat’s sake: what to do about peat on your development site (Event Code CS280921)

28 September 2021
12:30am – 1:30pm

Over 20% of Scotland is covered in peat, much of this being in the Highlands & Islands. Peatlands in good condition actively remove carbon from the atmosphere, while poorly designed and managed development on peat results in carbon emissions. Understanding the statutory framework for peat is critical to anyone involved in developments on ‘greenfield’ sites.

Members: £10
Non-Members: £15

Susan Haslam of SEPA is responsible for providing advice to planning authorities on peat issues in the Highland & Islands area. Susan will explain the policy and guidance that applies when considering developments on peat and will give examples of best practice.

Mairi Mackenzie, Contracts Manager at Duncan Mackay & Sons, has extensive experience of managing peat excavation and restoration works and will share her lessons learned. There will be an opportunity for Q&A after the online presentation.

Webinar: Leading Difference – live interactive session with Averil Leimon (Event code SE290921)

29 September 2021
12pm – 1pm

In the past you knew what a leader looked like – a white male of a certain age and background. Each decade since the 1950s has seen an increase in difference at work, yet many leaders are not equipped, preferring to operate in a ‘one size fits all’ style. We need a new standard if we want to move forward.

Members FREE
Non-Members £10

Good modern leadership involves appointing and learning to lead those different from yourself - personality, motivators, gender, race, ethnicity, age, sexual orientation and ability. When coaching senior leaders, we often have to work at breaking down assumptions relating to all of these.

In this interactive talk, Averil Leimon, Director at White Water Group will give her views about leading and being led with particular reference to gender. Averil is an executive coach, a leadership psychologist, an author and a media commentator. Her approach to coaching combines sound psychology, warmth and robust respectful challenge.

Webinar: Zero Carbon Development - Offsite construction modular housing (Event Code SEW300921) Two of Britain’s biggest challenges are Climate and Housing. Offsite-constructed homes are increasingly recognised as the answer to the crisis and the solution to speed up the quantity of development if we are going to reach our targets, to both reduce carbon emissions and build 300,000 new homes a year in England. Manufacturing precision engineered homes in a factory, rather than building them in rain, wind and snow in a field, enables us to create better quality, energy efficient housing and also empowers us to deliver more homes, more quickly. Join us to hear from Kate Howe, Development Director at Public Sector plc and Michelle Richardson, Pre-Construction Director at Ideal Modular Homes. There will be an opportunity for Q&amp;A after the presentation. Registration via the Women in Property App or booking@womeninproperty.org.uk	30 September 2021 5:30pm – 6:30pm Members FREE Non-Members £10

SAVE THE DATE: Webinar - Taking Control of your Financial Life (Event Code NATW031121)

Women are more successful in the workplace than ever before, yet their growing wealth and success at work is not reflected in how they approach long term saving.

There are typically a number of major milestones in women's lives which impact on financial security, for example saving, budgeting, simultaneously looking after both children and elderly parents, protecting against poor health and retirement planning.

By highlighting the key 'moments' women face in their 30s, 40s and 50s, Sophie-Jane Keelaghan will explain the impact they may have on women's long-term financial security. In understanding more about this, you will be more aware of how to mitigate any future problems.

There will be an opportunity for questions at the end of the presentation.

An event flyer and booking form with further details will be available shortly.
