A note from Danielle Miller, Branch Chair for Central Scotland

Since stepping into the role of Chair in March, it has been a pleasure to connect with so many members and supporters across Central Scotland.

Many of you will know that I have taken on this role while also preparing for motherhood. As a first-time mum to be, I made a conscious decision to be open about balancing these two important parts of my life. The honest and supportive conversations this has sparked have reinforced the importance of being kind to ourselves, asking for help when needed, and being open when things are challenging. While much of the conversation around working parents focuses on returning to work, the lead-up to maternity leave can bring its own pressures. We must continue to support one another at every stage.

A particular highlight of the past few months has been our focus on the next generation entering the industry. Central Scotland's Next Gen Committee has now officially launched, and early meetings are already shaping plans to better engage students and early-career professionals. Alongside this, our annual Student Awards programme remains a standout moment in the calendar, and it was fantastic to celebrate all finalists at our sold-out Summer Drinks reception. We have also concluded our nine-month schools outreach programme, further strengthening our connection with young people considering careers in the sector. Together, these initiatives play a vital role in supporting the next generation and developing a strong, diverse future workforce.

Looking Ahead: An Exciting Year for Women in Property

Our events programme has been busy this year and, while we take a slower pace over the summer, preparations are already underway for an exciting autumn schedule. This will include dedicated sessions focused on our chosen charities, raising awareness of miscarriage and menopause, alongside a range of networking opportunities, including lunches and our popular netwalking events.

I'm also delighted to confirm that our Central Scotland Annual Dinner will take place on 5th March 2027 at the Assembly Rooms in Edinburgh. Following last year's sell-out event, we encourage early booking when tickets are released in September.

Finally, I'd like to recognise our incredible committee. Their passion and commitment make everything we do possible, and it is a privilege to work alongside them.

I look forward to seeing many of you at our upcoming events.

Promotions: Congratulations to Nicola Insley on her promotion to Partner at CMS, Aberdeen. Nicola is also a valued member of the Northern Scotland Committee.

Membership Growth: May continued to see strong increases in Women in Property membership across both the Central and Northern Scotland branches.

Student Success: Congratulations to all 12 finalists at the Edinburgh Summer Drinks & Student Awards. Special congratulations to our Central Scotland regional winners, Sophie McQueen and Michaela Rendlová, and to Amy Mustarde, winner of the Northern Scotland Women in Property Student Award. Read more about our winners in this newsletter.

Schools Initiative: The nine-month Central Scotland Schools Outreach Programme concluded with final presentations from pupils at Rosebank Distillery. A huge thank you to our volunteers, who contributed more than 150 hours to the 2025-26 programme, helping to inspire the next generation of industry professionals.

2026 Central Scotland Summer Drinks & Student Awards Celebrations

Women in Property's 2026 Central Scotland Student Awards took place at The Scotsman Hotel in Edinburgh alongside our annual Summer Drinks event, bringing together students, members, and industry professionals for an inspiring evening celebrating the next generation of talent entering the built environment sector.

This year's regional competition showcased an exceptionally high standard of work, with 12 finalists representing universities across Central Scotland. Through presentations, interviews, and networking opportunities, the students demonstrated not only academic excellence but also the passion, creativity, and ambition that will help shape the future of our industry.

The awards evening was made possible through the support of our Student Awards sponsors, BakerHicks, Avison Young, and Tilbury Douglas, together with event sponsor Kier Construction. Their continued commitment to supporting emerging talent is invaluable in helping Women in Property create opportunities for students to connect with industry and build professional networks. Guests also heard from Rachel Hogg and Andrew Maher, who shared insights from their own career journeys and spoke about the importance of allyship, mentorship, and collaboration within the industry.

The event highlighted the value of creating meaningful connections between students and professionals. Feedback from participants was overwhelmingly positive, with students rating the judging process an average of 9 out of 10. Many commented on the supportive atmosphere, the opportunity to discuss industry challenges with experienced professionals, and the chance to build networks beyond their own universities and disciplines.

Congratulations to all 12 finalists, with special recognition to the Central Scotland regional winners, Sophie McQueen and Michaela Rendlová. You can find out more about their winning projects and the other finalists on the following pages.

Meet Our 2026 Central Scotland Student Award Winner

“From being nominated to attending the awards ceremony, the experience has been brilliant. I have been inspired by the women in the industry, both students and professionals, and by their expertise, passion, kindness and support for others. I am very grateful for the experience”

Michaela Rendlová

I am studying BEng Civil Engineering with Architecture at the University of Glasgow, with a strong interest in sustainable and community-focused design. Coming from the Czech countryside, studying in Glasgow has broadened my understanding of how the built environment shapes communities.

LinkedIn

Project

My project, Mill and Meadow, was developed as part of the Cultural Lighthouse brief. Located near the former North Woodside Flint Mill site on the Kelvin River Walkway, it aimed to celebrate local history while creating a community space for making, learning and living. The project focused on connecting the North Woodside community through its social and natural context, combining gardens, shared spaces and landscape-sensitive design to encourage interaction, creativity and wellbeing, while developing my understanding of sustainability, urban regeneration and design.

Feedback on the Student Awards

Winning the Central Scotland WiP Student Award has been a real honour. It was a valuable opportunity to engage with industry professionals, share and develop my ideas, and meet many inspiring people. I am very grateful to WiP for creating such a supportive experience for students across the UK.

Concrete Bridge Link

Third year Civil Engineering Project

Internal Beam Reinforcement

Sophie McQueen
Heriot-Watt University

Before: Existing Building

After: Proposed Bridge Link

Design of a reinforced concrete bridge connection that integrates safely within an existing campus environment.

“Civil engineering is about more than numbers. It’s about improving the spaces where people live, work and move every day. Women belong in engineering, and events like this are a powerful reminder of the contribution we make to the industry.”

Sophie McQueen

I have just completed my third year at Heriot-Watt University, studying for an MEng in Civil Engineering. My main interest is structural engineering, particularly bridge design, although I am also fascinated by the emerging field of structures in space.

LinkedIn

Project

My project focused on the design of a reinforced concrete bridge link connecting two buildings on campus. I explored the key concepts behind how such a structure would be designed, including structural analysis, load considerations, and the development of final design proposals. This provided real insight into how engineers approach a project from concept through to completion.

Feedback on the Student Awards

The WiP Student Awards have been an incredible experience. As a student breaking into the built environment, I've already made some amazing connections through the process and look forward to building on those within the WiP network. It's the kind of platform that genuinely opens doors, and I'd encourage any woman in the industry, at whatever stage of her career, to get involved.

Women in Property Scotland Mentoring Scheme

Become a Women in Property Mentor

At some point in our careers, most of us benefit from having someone to talk to who can offer impartial advice, encouragement, and a fresh perspective. A mentor can provide a confidential space to discuss challenges, explore opportunities, and help achieve career goals.

The Women in Property Mentoring Scheme relies on volunteer mentors from across the built environment. Anyone can be a mentor. We all have valuable experience and insights that could help another member, regardless of role, sector, or career stage. Mentoring is also a rewarding experience for mentors, offering the opportunity to build new connections, learn from others and give something back to the industry.

“I had such a positive experience as a Mentor! I was hopefully able to offer a non-judgemental, supportive, open and confidential platform. Although we both came from very different sectors in the Built Environment, I think this was beneficial. Mentoring is a two-way relationship and the Mentor can learn from the Mentee. I was so inspired by my Mentee’s talent and enthusiasm.”

Morag Dearsley, Mentor

There are limited places available for the training session on 15th July. The next session will be on 30th September.

All members wishing to take part as a mentor or mentee must attend a virtual training session to understand the mentoring process and get the most from the experience. The training is delivered by Women in Property’s Mentoring Consultant, Cathy Stewart, a former architect and National Chair who now specialises in coaching and behavioural change. Places are limited, and a waiting list will operate if demand exceeds capacity. The mentoring scheme is open exclusively to Women in Property members.

For more information, view the Women in Property Mentoring Scheme Guide here or contact mentoring@womeninproperty.org.uk.

A Strong Start for Next Gen Central Scotland Committee

The WiP Central Scotland branch has launched a new team, the CS Next Gen Committee, focused on supporting early-career professionals across the built environment. The committee brings together Emily Bates (Calton Planning + Development), Imogen Owen (Form Design Consultants), Julianne Santos (Pegasus Group), and Tammy Adelabu (Allied Surveyors Scotland).

Since launching, the Next Gen Committee has delivered two well-attended kick-off events in Glasgow and Edinburgh, hosted by Morton Fraser MacRoberts. The events featured a CPD session led by a partner, catering, and networking opportunities for professionals across the built environment sector. Following this, a survey has been circulated to Central Belt universities to understand which activities would best support students, as well as any barriers to attendance. The results will help shape an accessible and relevant year-round events programme.

In June, the committee also supported the MLA Interior Design Student Showcase in Glasgow, hosted by MLA. The event brought together final-year students from universities including Duncan of Jordanstone College of Art & Design, Edinburgh Napier University, Glasgow School of Art, and Edinburgh College of Art, giving them the opportunity to present their work to industry and potential employers.

As part of this, Imogen Owen mentored three students, offering feedback on their presentations and sharing industry insight. This helped strengthen connections between emerging talent and the wider profession, supporting the committee's goal of early-career engagement.

Chair Emily Bates is now developing a varied programme of workshops, site visits, and networking events for students and early-career professionals, with new sessions planned for September to align with the start of term.

If you are interested in supporting the Next Gen Committee in any capacity, please contact emily@caltonplanning.co.uk.

Wellbeing Series: Yoga with Breakfast and Networking – April 2026

A big thank you to Laura Watt from Breathing Space Studio for leading a relaxing and energising morning of yoga and meditation, combining movement, mindfulness and paired work to create a restorative and sociable experience. Attendees then enjoyed networking over breakfast from Bev's Bistro, rounding off a calm and positive start to the day. Thanks to CMS UK for hosting the event in their Aberdeen office and supporting this wellbeing session. Following its success, the Yoga Breakfast will now become a quarterly WiP event.

Crop Innovation Centre (CIC), The James Hutton Institute Visit – March 2026

We hosted a return visit to the newly completed Crop Innovation Centre at the James Hutton Institute in Invergowrie. Members enjoyed a guided tour of state-of-the-art facilities, showcasing plant science research through the Advanced Plant Growth Centre and International Barley Hub. The visit highlighted innovations in phenotyping and vertical farming, and how the centre supports crop science, food resilience and sustainable agriculture. Thank you to all involved in hosting this insightful visit.

Netwalking (Aberdeen and Dundee) – May 2026

WiP Northern Scotland recently hosted successful netwalking events as part of its wellbeing and networking programme. In Aberdeen, members and guests enjoyed a summer walk at Hazlehead Park, while in Tayside participants took part in a scenic stroll along the River Tay. Both events offered a valuable opportunity to step away from the desk, enjoy fresh air, and connect with local members in an informal setting. Thank you to everyone who joined us, with more netwalks planned throughout the year.

Northern Scotland Student Awards Summer Drinks – May

WiP Northern Scotland celebrated the Student Awards Summer Drinks at Monty's Wine Bar, marking 20 years of the National Student Awards programme.

The evening brought together students, members and industry professionals to recognise five outstanding nominees from universities across the North East. Each student impressed throughout the judging process and on the night itself, demonstrating confidence, professionalism and a strong passion for the built environment.

The event also provided a valuable opportunity for employers and sector professionals to connect with emerging talent and celebrate their achievements. Amy Mustarde was announced as the regional winner, with congratulations extended to all finalists for their success. Thank you to Graham + Sibbald and SPACE for their support, and to the Northern Scotland committee for organising a fantastic and memorable event.

The National Centre for Music, Edinburgh Site Visit – May

WiP members enjoyed an exclusive site visit to the National Centre for Music at the former Royal High School on Regent Road, led by Turner & Townsend, Robertson Group and the Royal High School Preservation Trust.

The tour offered a behind-the-scenes look at the sensitive restoration of Thomas Hamilton's Grade A listed building, which has stood empty since 1968 and is set to become a world-class cultural venue for Edinburgh and Scotland. Attendees heard how the project will carefully conserve the historic fabric while introducing modern performance spaces, including a 300-seat hall and additional smaller venues to support music education and performance.

The visit also included access to the roof, providing panoramic views across the Edinburgh skyline. Discussions highlighted both the challenges and opportunities involved in delivering such a complex heritage-led regeneration project. Thank you to all hosts for an insightful and inspiring visit, and we look forward to seeing the next stage of progress.

New Members Breakfast – April

WiP Central Scotland hosted a New Members Breakfast at Badger & Co, Edinburgh, welcoming new and returning members to the network. The informal morning provided an opportunity to meet the Central Scotland committee, hear about plans for the year ahead, and learn more about upcoming events. It created space for relaxed conversation and meaningful connections within the Women in Property community. Thank you to everyone who joined us for such a warm and engaging start to the day. We are delighted to welcome you and look forward to seeing you at future events.

Palm Houses, Royal Botanic Garden, Edinburgh Site Visit – May

WiP members enjoyed a sold-out site visit to the restored Palm Houses at the Royal Botanic Garden Edinburgh, set against clear blue skies. Architect Jamie Bateman of Smith Scott Mullan and Fiona Inches from RBGE shared insights into the careful conservation of this A-Listed 19th century landmark, including the restoration of thousands of curved glass panes and sensitive ironwork repairs. Fiona also highlighted the return of the plant collections. Thank you to all speakers and hosts.

The Avenues Walking Tour – May

WiP Central Scotland and CIVIC hosted a guided walking tour of Glasgow's Avenues programme, exploring key public realm projects including Argyle Street, Cambridge Street and North Hanover Street. Led by Ross Campbell from CIVIC, attendees gained insight into how the vision for more people-focused, sustainable streets has been translated into design and delivery. The tour highlighted approaches to greening, drainage and materials, as well as the challenges of working within a complex urban environment. Thank you to everyone who joined us.

Edinburgh Poetry Netwalk – May

WiP Central Scotland hosted a memorable poetry netwalk led by poet Ken Cockburn, taking members and guests through both well known and hidden green spaces and historic sites in the Old Town. The walk offered a peaceful break in the working day, with poems shared at key locations including the Scottish Poetry Library, Dunbar's Close Garden and Holyrood Palace gardens, encouraging participants to slow down and enjoy the city on our doorstep. Thank you to everyone who joined us for this inspiring and reflective experience.

Spin Session – May

WiP Central Scotland teamed up with Dentons and TFT for an energising early morning spin session in support of our charity partner, Club Peloton. Led by Phil Knight, the class welcomed participants of all abilities for a fun, high-energy workout, followed by networking over well-earned smoothies. The event was a great reminder that building professional connections can also support health and wellbeing while trying something a little different before the working day began. Thank you to everyone who joined us and helped make it such a successful morning.

Planning Your Financial Future – June

WiP Central Scotland recently hosted an engaging Lunch & Learn with Chartered Financial Planner Gemma Wood of Wood Wealth Ltd. Gemma shared practical advice on retirement planning, financial independence and using cashflow modelling to create realistic long-term plans. The session gave attendees greater confidence in taking control of their financial futures, demonstrating how small steps today can make a significant difference tomorrow. Thank you to Gemma for her expertise and to Graham + Sibbald for sponsoring the event.

Lunch & Learn Socials: Building Your Personal Brand & Elevating Your Presence on LinkedIn - June

WiP Scotland's Lunch & Learn Social featured an insightful session with Sophie Rankine, founder of Sophie Gets Social, on building a strong personal brand and using LinkedIn more effectively. Attendees gained practical tips on increasing visibility, creating authentic content and aligning their online presence with organisational values, alongside valuable networking and discussion.

June Netwalk in Edinburgh - June

Our netwalk with Women in Transport attracted a record 50+ sign ups but unfortunately had to be cancelled due to the extreme heat warning. A few people missed the message and enjoyed an unofficial walk in the shade, with great conversation as always. Apologies to everyone who signed up and was disappointed. We'll be rescheduling the walk and hope to organise a joint Women in Transport netwalk in Glasgow too.

GRAHAM Group St Vincent Studio's Site Visit – June

WiP Scotland members attended an exclusive site walk at GRAHAM Group's student accommodation development on St Vincent Street, Glasgow, as the project moved towards completion.

Hosted by the project team, the visit provided a behind-the-scenes look at one of the city's major developments nearing handover. Attendees gained insight into key project milestones, final construction stages and handover preparation, as well as the construction methods, coordination and delivery challenges involved on a live site. The session also highlighted health, safety and operational considerations, alongside lessons learned throughout the build and the collaborative approach taken across disciplines.

There was time for Q&A, discussion and networking, offering valuable insight for those involved in design, delivery, construction and wider built environment roles, strengthening understanding of complex urban project delivery in practice.

WiP Scotland x Scottish Interior Design Student's Showcase – June

WiP Scotland was delighted to attend the Scottish Interior Design Students Showcase at Glasgow's BaaD, following an invitation from MLA. The event brought together students and industry professionals for project exhibitions, presentations and networking. WiP Events Coordinator Claire McBlain introduced the benefits of WiP membership and the support available to those starting their careers. It was a great opportunity to connect with emerging talent and celebrate Scotland's future designers.

WiP Breakfast Panel - Solace x Mute x MGAC – June

WiP Central Scotland welcomed members and guests to the Solace Interiors showroom in Glasgow for an engaging breakfast panel in partnership with Solace Interiors, Mute and MGAC. Expert panellists explored the findings of recent lifecycle cost research, discussing how modular workplace design can improve flexibility, support more sustainable commercial interiors and respond to the changing needs of post-pandemic workplaces. Attendees enjoyed lively discussion, networking over breakfast and valuable insights into the future of workplace design.

How to succeed whilst being your authentic self at work with Gillian Ogilvie – June

WiP Central Scotland was delighted to welcome Gillian Ogilvie, Managing Director of Will Rudd Davidson Edinburgh, for an inspiring session on succeeding while staying true to your authentic self. Through personal stories, practical insights and memorable ABBA references, Gillian explored the value of authenticity, emotional intelligence and inclusive leadership. Attendees left reflecting on how embracing their true selves can build confidence, strengthen relationships and create more supportive workplaces.

Schools Outreach Celebrations

Jillian Love and Kim-Marie Bryce

Falkirk High School pupils discover construction is about more than bricks and mortar. Since last August, an S2 wider achievement class at Falkirk High School has been taking part in our central Scotland Schools Outreach programme - a 10-month initiative run by our amazing industry volunteers, in partnership with Kier Construction and MLA Architects.

“The project has made me realise just how many different jobs there are in construction. It’s opened a whole new world to me.”

Emma McCall (13)

“Learning how to speak in front of people has been a really big thing for me, as it’s not something I do very often.”

Ava Dougall (13)

Each month, a different professional came into the classroom and many of the roles that made the biggest impression were ones the pupils had never heard of - sustainability consultants modelling energy performance, bid writers and marketing managers using storytelling to win projects, and quantity surveyors managing complex project budgets.

At the heart of the programme was an opportunity to create proposals for what the young people would like to see at the new Falkirk Town Hall site. Falkirk Council officers came to the school to set the brief, and the pupils also visited the site, getting a real sense of the space and its surroundings.

Working in teams, they moved through visioning and site planning stages, tackling structural challenges, considering costs and learning to interpret a complex client brief. The programme also included a visit to BE-ST, Scotland's national innovation centre for construction, where pupils saw how Scottish-grown timber is being engineered into sustainable building materials.

At the Rosebank Distillery in Camelon they presented their finished proposals - complete with 3D models - to an audience of invited guests.

Falkirk Council's Portfolio Holder for Education, Cllr Iain Sinclair, attended the presentations and saw first-hand how the pupils had grown in confidence, developed new skills and could articulate how their school subjects connected directly to professional life - Maths to quantity surveying, Physics to structural engineering, and Geography to urban planning.

Thanks to our amazing volunteers who dedicated 150 hours to our 2025-26 programme! Watch our video here to find out more.

“Watching these young people present with such confidence and knowledge was genuinely impressive. This is exactly the kind of real-world learning experience we want for our young people - broadening their horizons and opening doors they might never have known existed.”

“It was also fitting that the presentations took place in Rosebank Distillery - a building designed by MLA Architects, one of the programme's partners. Having learnt about every stage of the design and construction process, the pupils understood exactly what went into creating the space they were standing in and had a better understanding than most. I hope it inspires them as they look ahead to their future careers.”
